

A 23 year old confused male walks into to the ED in January wearing nothing but a T-shirt and shorts. His breath smells of alcohol, he is not shivering, and his fingers are frostbitten. He has an atrial arrhythmia on ECG with a stable blood pressure. What is an appropriate next step?

- a) Electrical cardioversion
- b) Warming blankets
- c) Echocardiogram
- d) Chemical cardioversion
- e) Peritoneal dialysis with warmed fluids
